

Presenter's Guide, Part 1: Run of Show

Build Your AI-Powered 90-Day Marketing Campaign for the Holidays Branches B1 · The Creative Strategist ·
Monday, September 28, 2026 · 9:00 to 5:00

The one sentence version

Five questions, five modules, one website. They answer questions, paste a prompt into Claude, and by five o'clock they have a finished 90-day plan with dates on it. We are building the strategy today, not the assets.

The three modes, and why they are on the slides

Every slide carries a tag in the top right corner so the room always knows what is being asked of them. Say this once, at slide 5, and then let the tags do the work.

Tag	Colour	What it means
PRESENTATION	Navy	I teach, you listen. Laptops can stay closed.
COMPUTER WORK	Terracotta	You build, I circulate. Heads down.
COLLABORATION	Amber	You talk to each other. Laptops down, look up.

Roughly 170 minutes of presenting, 180 minutes of computer work, 55 minutes of collaboration. The building is still the biggest block by design.

The clock

Time	Mode	Slides	What happens
9:00 to 9:30	Computer work	1, 6	Arrival and Station Zero. Get every laptop green.
9:30 to 9:45	Presentation	2, 3, 4, 5	Open. Frame the day, name the three modes, pair partners.
9:45 to 10:20	Presentation	7 to 13	Topic 1: What a campaign really is, plus Case Study 1.
10:20 to 10:35	Presentation	14 to 17	Topic 2: Who are you selling to.
10:35 to 11:20	Computer work	18	Module 01. Customer Report.
11:20 to 11:35	Collaboration	19	Share Out. Question seven, read aloud.
11:35 to 11:45	Break	none
11:45 to 12:10	Presentation	20 to 24	Topic 3: Where will you sell. Marketing channels.
12:10 to 12:30	Presentation	25 to 28	Topic 4 begins: When will you sell, plus Case Study 2.
12:30 to 1:30	Lunch	none
1:30 to 1:50	Presentation	29, 30	Topic 4 finishes: the small business case, which dates fit.
1:50 to 2:25	Computer work	31	Module 02. Pick your moments.
2:25 to 2:40	Collaboration	32	Moment Draft. Round the room.
2:40 to 3:05	Presentation	33 to 36	Topic 5: What is the offer, plus Case Study 3.
3:05 to 3:50	Computer work	37	Module 03. Goal, offer and message.
3:50 to 4:05	Collaboration	38	Say It Out Loud with partners.
4:05 to 4:15	Break	none
4:15 to 4:25	Presentation	39 to 42	Topic 6: Your 90-day plan.
4:25 to 4:50	Computer work	43	Module 04. Build the plan.
4:50 to 5:00	Collaboration	44 to 48	Pressure-test, close, trade plans, thank you.

The five questions, and where each one lives

The whole day hangs off five questions, and slide 11 names them all.

Question	Topic	Where they answer it
To whom?	2	Module 01
Where will you sell?	3	Module 04, first three questions
When?	4	Module 02
What is the offer?	5	Module 03
What is the plan?	6	Module 04

Note the gap on Where. You teach channels at 11:45 but they pick theirs at 4:25, in Module 04. That is deliberate: channels are context for everything else, and picking them makes more sense once they know their customer, their dates and their offer. Say so when you teach it, so nobody wonders why they are not filling anything in yet: "You are not picking today's channels right now. I am giving you the map. You will choose at the end, when you know what you are actually carrying."

What changed, and what it means for you

We are no longer making flyers or videos today. The afternoon used to be three production sprints. It is now the fourth work module plus a peer pressure-test of the calendar. The reason is simple: a business owner who leaves with one flyer and no plan has nothing in December. One who leaves with a dated plan and no flyer can make the flyer any evening in twenty minutes.

Two consequences to say out loud:

1. The weekly rhythm on slide 36 is what their plan prescribes, not what they do today. Three posts and one video a week, starting this week, from the calendar Claude builds them. Do not let anyone think they are meant to produce it in the room.
2. The asset-making is a future session. Say that explicitly at slide 3 and again at slide 40, so nobody feels shortchanged. They are getting the harder half today.

The three case-study slides

Slides 13, 24 and 31 are deliberately empty on the right side, with a dashed border, waiting for you. Drop in a screenshot, a photo, a chart, or embed a video. One each in Topics 1, 3 and 4.

Suggested fit, though they are yours to fill:

- Slide 13, after One Message Many Skins: a campaign that ran the same message across several moments.
- Slide 24, after Trend Days: a business that picked one unlikely date and owned it.

- Slide 31, after You Do Not Have to Discount: an offer that won without cutting price.

If a slide is still empty when you get there, talk over it. It reads as a title card, not a mistake.

Tonight, or right now if it is already morning

1. Confirm the two rooms with Steve. He has 111 and 112. If you are covering both, the five computer-work blocks are your windows: 10:40, 1:30, 2:45, 4:10, plus Station Zero at 9:00. Each runs itself for 35 minutes or more.
2. Drop your case studies into slides 13, 24 and 31, or decide to talk over them.
3. Open the hub and run Module 01 yourself against your own business. Twenty minutes, and nothing surprises you in front of the room.
4. Skim the Marketing Channels guide, which is downloadable from Module 00 and Module 04 on the hub. Slides 21 to 24 teach its core idea, and Module 04 opens with three channel questions built from it. Every option on that page has an information button, so you do not have to explain all fifty channels from the front of the room.

Before 9:00

- Hub URL on the screen and written large on the whiteboard
 - Slide 1 up, slide 6 ready to flip to as people sit
 - A Parking Lot sheet taped to the wall
 - Know where the outlets are

The three rules you say out loud once

The parking lot. If a tool blocks you for more than five minutes, write it on the sheet and move on. I will fix it at the break.

Everyone builds Thanksgiving. Say it in the open, again at Module 02, again at Module 04. One shared target is what lets you help fifteen people at once.

Watch the corner of the slide. Navy means listen. Terracotta means build. Amber means talk to each other.

What to protect if you fall behind

In order of what to cut:

1. Topic 1. Slides 10 and 11 can go to two minutes each. It is a refresher.
2. A case study. Talk over it in thirty seconds instead of three minutes.
3. The Moment Draft. Four volunteers instead of the whole room.

The channels section is Topic 3, slides 20 to 24. If you are short on time there, cut slides 21 and 22 to about a minute each and protect slide 23, Found Build Accelerate. That single slide is the whole idea, and the first three questions of Module 04 depend on it.

Never cut Module 03 or Module 04. Module 03 is where the message gets made, and without it there is no campaign, just a list of dates. Module 04 is the thing they take home. If it comes to it, run Module 04 short and let them finish it tonight, but do not skip starting it in the room.

Room size adjustments

Five or six people. Every share-out becomes one circle. Sit beside people during the work blocks.

Fifteen or more. Name a table captain per table. Share-outs happen at the table, not to the room. You circulate to captains.

Anyone without a Master Brain. Send them to Module 00b on the hub. Announce it once to the whole room at 9:15 so nobody has to admit they lost their file. They run about twenty minutes behind and catch up over lunch.
